TORONTO, June 29, 2010 /PRNewswire via COMTEX/ --

Celestica Inc. (NYSE, TSX: CLS), a global leader in the delivery of end-to-end product lifecycle solutions, today announced that its San Jose, California facility has been named one of the Bay Area's Top 60 Employers in 2010. This honour reinforces the importance the company places in empowering employees and creating a positive work environment. Celestica is the only electronics manufacturing services (EMS) provider to earn this distinction in 2010.

"Our highly skilled and committed employees in San Jose are crucial to our success and they differentiate us in the electronics manufacturing services industry," said Les Thomas, General Manager, San Jose, Celestica. "We are proud to be recognized as one of the Bay Area's Top 60 Employers, and we feel this distinction reflects our dedication to fostering a culture that focuses on building trust with customers through the delivery of innovative supply chain solutions that drive their success."

Celestica ranked number nine out of 15 in the Top Medium WorkPlaces in the Bay area. The 2010 Bay Area News Group Top WorkPlaces program recognized 60 companies within the region.

Celestica's San Jose facility is a specialized technology center that operates as a gateway to Celestica's low-cost operations in Asia by offering new product introduction (NPI) services to customers in the enterprise server, storage networking and industrial markets. The site, which has been part of the Celestica network since 1998, also offers complex printed circuit assembly and rack assembly for highly configurable products destined for the North American market.
